

CONTENTS

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS	vii
EDITOR'S FOREWORD by Meg Harris Williams	ix
1 The task of psychoanalysis (2001)	1
2 The analytical work (1967)	5
3 Psychoanalysis as a human activity (1965)	17
4 Carrying the transference: from Freud to Klein to Bion (1989)	21
5 Perversion of the transference (1973)	33
6 The beauty of the method (1988)	39
7 Resistance to dream analysis in patient and analyst (1984)	43
8 Notes on analytic receptivity, observation, and counterdreaming	51

9	The relation of aims to methodology in the treatment of children (1968)	57
10	Narcissistic foundation of the erotic transference (1974)	65
11	The psychic reality of unborn children (1973)	71
12	An interruption technique for the analytic impasse (1968)	75
13	Temperature and distance as technical dimensions of interpretation (1976)	87
14	Routine and inspired interpretations: their relation to the weaning process in psychoanalysis (1972)	99
15	On supervision (with Robert and Mirta Oelsner; 1999)	117
16	Interpretation versus interpretative reverie: facilitating internal objects (with Martha Harris; 1980)	127
17	The shadows in the cave and the writing on the wall (1988)	151
18	A review of my writings (2000)	159
19	Good luck (2002)	169
	INDEX	175